Missile Talks Begun

LONDON (UPI) - The United States and Russia have begun preliminary contacts in Muscow that are expected to lead to full-dress negotiations for a missile moratorium, authoritative diplomatic sources said Friday.

They said the contacts are tenderway in Moscow on a diplomatic level. The actual negotiations to limit defensive and offensive rockets would take place in Consens and would take place in Geneva and would be strictly between the United States and the Soviet union.

They would not involve the surrent Geneva discussions by the 17-nation disarmament con-mittee, which includes both powers. However, the sources said, the men leading the two delegations at the disarmament conference probably would top the missile negotiating teams. JUST THIS MONTH

President Johnson had called for a halt to the antimissile missile race last year, but it was not until this month that Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin offered to negotiate a reduction of both offensive and defensive

The U.S. immediately accepted and suggested the talks be carried out on a bilateral basis separate from the Geneva arms talks.

According to the sources, the Soviet Union is basically in agreement with the proposal but wants the same negotiating teams on both sides

Contacts between the two countries have been established n Moscow, the sources said, the exchanges are in progress.

Although the time, scope and aims of the negotiations still are under discussion, they added, formal talks could open in "the very near future."

Separate Bills

IT IS COMMENDABLE that the new justice minister, Mr. John Turner, contemplates breaking the omnibus bill containing amendments to the Criminal Code into several bills when the proposed legislation, which died when the last Parliament was dissolved, is reintroduced. If his boss will allow him to do so, that is. Prime Minister Trudeau has said that he still regards the bill as a single item but that if Mr. Turner has grave reasons for changing it, he supposes "we'd consider them "

Mr. Turner says he is conscious of the difficulties a single bill could present for members of Parliament at second reading, when they must vote on the principle of the legislation. A member for instance could be completely in favor of tighter firearms control as proposed in one amendment but feel himself morally obliged to vote against the bill because of other provisions, such as the liberalization of the law on abortion and homosexuality. Introducing separate bills on such alterations of the code would overcome this difficulty.

But unfortunately the expectation must be that it will do so only to a point if the government proceeds in this manner. For Mr. Turner does not foresee a free vote on any of the provisions. The proposed amendments are a government measure, he says, and he is treating them as a government measure. This means a division on party lines: the Liberal MPs are to all intents bound to support the measure, in one piece or several, with their votes.

To this extent the object of breaking up the bill would be negated. But nevertheless the separation of the more contentious issues would more clearly define Parliament's enthusiasm or lack of it for the government's various proposals. It also would eliminate the possibility, faint as it might be, that rebellion in the Liberal ranks over the abortion and homosexuality amendments could kill or indefinitely delay the whole omnibus bill.

Deceptive Wording

WHEN THE PROVINCIAL government insisted on W the municipalities issuing a new, standard and supposedly simplified tax notice form this year, it did so in haste. It was amxious not to lose a year in its effort to impress on taxpayers how light their school taxes were after deduction of the homeowners grant from this item first or alone instead of from the total of local levies. The haste was expensive for some municipalities which had already started preparing their tax notices on the old forms. Now another unfortunate result comes to light.

In Victoria this year the tax deadline was June This was a Sunday, so effectively But the provincially designed tax bills stated: "A percentage addition of 5 per cent will be added to the current taxes unpaid on the 2nd day of July."

Mr. Dennis Young, the city manager, has advised the council's legislative and finance committee that there is little the city can do - presumably meaning nothing — about providing relief for two taxpayers who have complained that they paid their bills on July 2 and yet were penalized. It was unfortunate, he said, that the city had to send out a confusing tax form and impose the penalty as required. And perhaps in strict terms of the law Victoria was so bound.

But whether the city has a moral obligation to refund the penalities is something else. In fact the penalty section of the tax bill refers clearly to "the current taxes unpaid on the 2nd day of July", not to the addition on the 2nd day of July of a penalty. If it were meant otherwise, someone's hurried syntax was defective. And the taxes were paid on July 2.

As interpreted in favor of the city, the notice therefore is not merely confusing, as Mr. Young describes it, but positively deceptive. It is not the city's fault. But neither would it be fitting if the council were to shrug its shoulders and leave matters as they stand for the two complainants and others who paid their bills on July 2.

In Pirate Waters

LIONG KONG, the thriving British colony on China's doorstep, has always been plagued by pirates. Even in modern times they have been a problem. A favorite strategem was to board coasting steamers, seize toe ship when it was well away from patrolled areas, rendervous with junks and proceed to transfer cargo and the cash and valuables they had taken from passengers and crew alike. As often as not, they would carry away a likely-looking prospect for ransom.

Bias Bay, just to the north of the colony, was the notorious lair of these predators, who were as cruel as they were daring.

Now Hong Kong has another problem. Chinese gunboats have taken to seizing fishing junks of Hong Kong registry beyond British waters. Recently 40 els were intercepted near Macao, the nominally Portuguese colony between Hong Kong and Canton. and directed into Chinese waters. There was no explanation. Nor is the fate of the fleet and those who manned it yet known to the British authorities.

This is a very serious matter, economically as well as politically. If the Communist government intends to restrict the operations of Hong Kong's enormous fishing fleet it would be a severe blow to the colony. As many as 10,000 junks of various sizes and steam trawlers which go far afield not only provide a mainstay of diet for three million people but a livelihood for many thousands. Fish products are one of Hong Kong's largest exports.

Whether these seizures indicate a planned campaign to injure the colony's economy or are just another instance of insolence calculated to irritate the authorities is not clear. At all events they are certainly illegal unless the junk fishermen are trespassing in Chinese waters. And there is no

It is a frustrating aituation for the British, who must suffer these contemptuous gestures with little hope of any satisfaction from Chinese authorities. They know the futility of protest. And it is obviously impossible to mount a protective naval guard over 10,000 scattered vessels.

Oil Find May Cross Border SH

By HARRY YOUNG usiness Editor

The Atlantic Richfield-Humble Oil find on the Arctic slope of HIGH EARNING Alaska has put oil exploration in the Canadian Arctic at a new attractive level and has probably speeded up the plans of a number of companies with oil and gas leases in those areas.

Matchick's last-! The rookie shortstop smashed! Held to two hits during the Red Sox, 7-3, in the other two minute rescue act enabled a two-out two-run homer in the ninth inning to petroit Tigers to rebuild their American League for a three-run rally that gave lead to seven and a half the Tigers a 5-4 decision over a single and Al Kaline drew a lead to seven and a half the Tigers a 54 decision over games Friday night. Baltimore Orioles.

IT BEATS ME By Jim Tang

CEC FERGUSON and Dave Mick surely can't miss being selected to the B.C. junior golf team after their showing in the provincial championship. If, as they should be, they are in Quebec next month, they'll be playing at one of the world's oddest named golf clubs—the Ki-8-eb Country Club near Three Rivers. It's pronounced, for reasons not readily discernible, as Ree-weet-eb and it was named after an Algonquin warrior . two former members of the Victoria Steelers-remember them? -have failed to make it with Western Football Conference clubs. Wayne Conrad was an early cut by B.C. Lions and Winnipeg Blue Bambers couldn't find room on their roster for Ed Out . . . Annin Stukun, gracelessly let go by hockey's Vancouver Canuchs, has bobbed up as director and public-relations man for the 27-hole Shamrock Golf and Country Club which is scheduled to open for business in Surrey in 1970 . . . word on Jack Blenda is that a knee injury suffered in an early game has ended his lacrosse career. Meanwhile, there is a report that Portland Adanacs are paying veteran Tom MeVio as much as $100 a game. If it's true, McVie will be in reality paid by the Western Division of the National Lacrosse Association. It's doubtful if Portland's contribution to the division pool will take care of the expanses of playing in Portland . . Sports Illustrated recently reported a Little League baseball game in Fort Collins, Colorado, in which the Wolves beat the Foxes, 77-18, and the combined total of 96 hits included 41 home runs . . . there is no doubt but that sincere efforts are being made to try and improve lacrosse refereeing but it seems to this observer that Wally Henderson, in charge of Western Division referees, would do better if he waited until games were over before talking with his officials. It's noticeable when Henderson is at games here that rules interpretations change after his between-period visits to the officials'

JIM CHAMPION, head coach of the B.C. Lions, is as Impressed as everyone with the size of the thighs on placekicker Ted Gerela. "He's got varicose veins higger than Heron's legs," Champion said, referring to Lach Heren, the spindly Linn pass-catcher . . a belated bow to Victoria-youngster Dale Long, who set a Canadian record in the 10-and-under age group recently by swimming the 110-yards backstroke in 1:23.1 minutes. It was actually a second record performance. He first lowered the record to 1:23.8 in the heats . . . the North American Soccer League, hardly drawing enough in many cities to pay park rentals, has hit upon a sure-fire way of making certain of administrative expenses. It's indiscriminate fining of players for almost every offence, and the sum in the past week has mounted to close to $1,000 . . . there's no question about what's keeping Los Angeles Dodgers down the National League pennant race. They've already lost 25 games in which their pitchers gave up three or fewer runs. 13 of them when the opposition couldn't score more than twice the two Chicago clubs have also been wasting some excellent pitching, the Cubs losing six times and the White Sox five times by 10 . . . there is a report that Gary Player is family will be closer while he goes about amassing a golf fortune. It's said he has his eyes on a spot in Alberta . Edmonton Enkinon could have the best set of defence tackies in the Western Football Conference this season in holdover John LaGrono and rookie Gregory Piper.

ALAN WILSON, a line star with Coulchen Timbermen of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Canadian Football League who impressed in the rookie tryout camp held by B.C. Lions earlier this year, is said to be going to the University of Montana on a football scholarship... Given Wallis had quite a season in the Carnarvon Pony League, Not only did he win the batting championship with the highest average yet recorded—540—but he had 10 doubles, two triples and eight home runs and a 12-1 pitching record . . . it just could happen that Vince Lamburdi general-manager of Green Bay Packers, will wind up as commissioner of the National Football League with the incumbent, Poto Runtile, joining the Columbia Broadcasting System as vice-president in charge of sports . . . Bill Lockend has announced his retirement after being president of the B.C. Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association for 16 of the last 18 years . . . also retiring recently was Speed Rermode, well-known Victoria thoroughbred trainer . . . it could be that the ABC should be told about the four tenpinners from the Colonist Nite-Side League who sent a bouquet of flowers to Norah Borde, wife of league-secretary Ed, for her help in getting them on the same team. However, it was pointed up that the favor was really to the other teams . . . Jim Carey, football star at Florida State University, has an interesting test case coming up in the courts. He had his acholarship revoked, reportedly for getting married against the wishes of his coach, and is suing for the value of the scholarship, esti-mated at between $1,400 and $1,500 . . . National Football League clubs dress 40 players for each game but coaching rosters are starting to catch up with playing rosters. When Dick Nelan took over as head coach of San Francisco (Bers, he retained three assistants and appointed five new ones . . , winger hab hartow, who so far hasn't had a merited chance in the National Hockey League, will almost certainly be with Vancouver

Companies Quit Lakehead Talks

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Bargaining talks seeking to resolve the Lakehead grain handlers' strike ceased abruptly Friday with a walkout by the negotiating team representing the terminal elevator companies. No arrangements were made for future meetings.

A companies spokesman said the walkout was preceded by an "intemperate response" from the union to management's stand that the wage issue should not have absolute priority in the talks.

"We felt the best thing to do in the face of that outburst was to withdraw," said E. V. Tither-idea of Winniess.

Victoria One

By DON COLLINS

Poet Gertrude Stein may remembered for the line: A ruse is a rose is a rose.

tart yes of fast doir? Victoria city engineer James Garnett is going to go down in history for claiming Victoria is Victoria is Victoria.

The words (poetic or otherwise) have come into being with the chuds of smoke emerging from the city's backyard incin-

NO RESEMBLANCE What Mr. Garnett really means is that Victoria, is simply Victoria and bears no resemblance to Halifax or Kitchener or Regina or Medi-figure, to any other Canadian city. And there it lies what might be considered an obstacle for thase who would rid the city of incinerators. Before consideration would be given to increasing garbage collection as a replacement for backyard burning, collection costs must be compared with those in other cities.

LETTERS LATER "And where the you find a Canadian city comparable to Victoria?" Mr. Garnett wondered aband Friday. As soon as the mail strike is over Mr. Garnett will be communicating with similar-sized Canadian cities where incinerators are not used. However, the cities may be similar in size only. It is considered doubtful that any would have nearly as much garden refuse as Victoria.

ROUGH ESTEMATE Nevertheless, Mr. Garnett expects to come up with some kind of rough cost estimate.

The latest attempt to sound the death knell for the silent, smouldering servant of the city's backyards is the second in a year. Last year Mr. Garnett's deent proposed that the incinerator system be

In a letter read to the city's public works committee, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, Greater Victoria's senior public health officer, soid incinerators could pose un air pollution problem.

Because the incinerator ques-tion is under study on a regional basis, little is expected to be tione for some time. But in the mountime Mr. Garnett has been asked to check other cities so costs of increased garbage collection services could be

One problem in pinning down a definite figure is that no one seems to know just how much garden refuse is burned.

CUT COSTS Some officials say a reduction In the present service could help eliminate costs of picking up newspapers and garden refuse. They elaim that backdoor nervice should be replaced by curbside pickup, thus cutting down on manpower.

This is done in eastern cities where incinerators aren't used, but where Victoria is concerned. Mr. Gurnett says the matter "in a different cup of ten."

There is one chief reuson for the backdoor service here, he says: Victoria has about twice the national average of elderly eitizens per capits. Some 16 per cent of the residents here fall fivto that category and the special attention in the mattter of garbage pickup is given for this reason.

MINORITY According to Mr. Gurnett the question would not have arisen had it not been for the actions of a small minority. "About 90 per cent of the people with incinerators are quite concerned with not creating a nuisance for their neighbors," he says.

Fashion Color Tones of Grey

By SHEILA WALSH ROME (UPI) - There was a romantic military air to the collection shown on the final day of Italian fall-winter high fashlon showings Thursday.

Santorenzo used the swagger great coat as the basic shape of the collection. Brugnoli tied scarves at the throat in the manner of First World War air ages, Guttinoni used Napoleonic uniform then for day clothes and took Josephine us her impiration for evening clothes. * * *

Saniorenzo, a Turin house making its debut in the Rome shows for international buyers and press, painted the fashion nicture grey.

The show opened with a dove grey wool coat of military cut. The shoulders were murrow but source. The coat was flared and extra fullness in back was punctu-ated by a half belt. The collar

The flared coat shape was carried straight through the collection with the same silhouette repeated in suitz and cocktail coats. * * *

The dominating color was grey. In all shades from ash to lead. Rich dark browns, honey-toned beiges and a cool blue the designer culted "polur" began to appear wards evening.

Four Join Elite

Shortly after the turn of the year I told the story of the All-America gladiolus, that elite band of gladiolus aristocrats to which many are called but few are chosen.

It isn't so generally known that a similar testing and rating system exists

The system involves the careful testing over a two-year period in 24 test gardens located in different sections of the U.S. and Canada and in varying climatic conditions.

During this test period, new roses are known to the panels of expert judges only by serial numbers, and names and origins are not revealed until they have been studied and scored and the returns compiled,

Scoring by the judges is by a uniform point system with marks given for such characteristics as form, clarity of coloring, disease resistance, fragrance, novelty and vigor.

In some years, not one single new rose has won itself enough marks to make the grade of All-America honors. Three All-America roses in one year was a big deal. This year the judges hit the jackpot, and in 1969 no fewer than four new All-America roses will be available to home gardeners.

The first is a floribunda called Angel Face, and it is the first lavender rose of any classification to win an All-America Ruse Selection award. The buds, shaped like Grecian urns, are ruby red with just a hint of lavender.

these open to chalice-like flowers in rich, deep lavender with petal edges curved, wavy and ruffled. The blooms are fairly large, about four inches across, and are borne in clusters of several on medium length stems.

The bush is low and broad, suitable for the foreground of the rose bed, and the foliage is a lustrous green with touches of copper. Angel Face has the blood of Circus, Lavender Pinnocchio and Sterling Silver in its awcestry.

Another floribunda to win 1969 honors is Gene Boerner, named for the late Eugene S. Buerner, dean of American rose breeders. This one is a clear, deep pink flower borne in clusters on long cutting stems of 10 to 12 inches. It won special approval by the judges for blooming nost all summer and well into the

The bush is upright, medium tall. and very symmetrical because of its free branching habit. The buds are long and pointed, opening into flowers about 3½ inches ecross and with 35 petals.

for 1968, a lovely white rose called Pasceli, bred by M. Louis Lens of Belgium, and considered by the judges to be the whitest of any hybrid tea rose yet developed.

The flower is outstandingly beautiful in form, with graceful urn-shaped buds opening to medium sized blooms of 35 to 40 petals which hold their high budlike centres even to the point when the outer petals drop off. The bush is erect in habit, vigorous and well clothed with bright green to mildew.

Pascali, in addition to its All-America award, has won a gold medal at the Hague, a silver metal at Baden-Baden, first certificates at Rome and Buden, first certificates at Rome and Paris and certificates of merit at Geneva, Madrid, London and Vienna.

The fourth winner is a grandiflora called Comunche, bearing very large high-centred blooms in a flery scarlet

Each rose stands boldly on a strong. cutting-length stem, sometimes singly, The bush is sull—about five feet — yet bushy and producing a steady succession of its 50-petal flowers.

What Good's a Secretary?

"I have a little shadow that goes in and out with me," sang R. L. Stevenson, and before he got to the bit about jumping into bed added "and what can be the use of him is more than I can see.

Any businessman however politry has to have his private personal confidential ahadow, but I can't help wondering how much use a secretary actually is - and whose fault it is, at

Useless ones certainly abound, as any good one will immediately agree. There is the languid debuts around adding tone to the office; her typing is so frightful and she jeers at the dreadful manners of her as "work" is over.

There is the aged tea-cosy, generally with a mother and a spaniel in whom one is expected to take an interest, who bustles in with a slopped cup of coffee just as the visitor is beginning to them, and tells you three times about everything ahe does for you once.

There are the girls that magazines and publishing houses attract in unfair mambers, who are too interesting for the job; they are brilliant at research, rotten at routine, and their prevalence is mainly the fault of places that won't hire such girls for the jobs they really want. Interesting as people they may be, but not an accretaries.

The interesting secretaries are either the specialists - legal, architectural and farm secretaries - or the Figuro figures who can do anything: Vivien Leigh once had one who ran her apartment for her, and a splendid secretary of West's used even to milk the cous.

And there are the ones described by one boss as "the little girls who hop about, changing jobs every six months." Bright and shrewd and often great fun, damage than all the rest.

For one thing, just as three moves are as good as a fire, three changes of secretary is equivalent to dropping a whole filing cabinet into the river.

But more: their bosses trusting them property, and trust is vital. "They've got to know where you've buried the bodies. they may be working for the police in six months' time?

All the people I talked to who know how to use a good secretary agreed on two things. You musn't let her feel and inferior, you must treat her like a human being feven though she is a woman! - don't forget how much time they have to brood." And you must tell her all and give her lots to do. The secretary who is really in her boss's confidence can see where his dictation is ambiguous, spot the warning signs of discontent around the office, be a superb fixer and act as a vital sounding-board for his ideas. One reason the top bruss gets the best accretaries has masty jolt.

nothing to do with money or prestige; It's because the Olympians are lunely and have to talk to their accretaries if

But plenty of men have no idea how to get the best out of the women who work for them. They shuffle through their own grubby notebooks for numbers the secretary has, or tell her to get a number and then wander off.

They join in at the wrung point, saying "Bring me the instead of "Make me a list." They shoot in and out without giving the girl a clear idea of what they're doing; then she sounds more of a foot than she is when people ask about him, so they don't state their business.

They can't dictate; they draft something and then read it aloud at dictation speed; or they never bother to tell the girts enough about how they want their letters written for the girl to be able to write about half of them herself. (About the only nensible reason for reluctance of secretaries to use a ctaphone is that it deprives them of their chance to say "I don't think that makes sense.").

They let the letters pile up and then feel aggrieved when they don't all catch the mail. And outsiders are aliotic, too: People who don't tell a secretary their name and what they want and ask if this is a good moment to talk need their head examined, in my view. And men will try to use secretaries as status symbols

Half the time all they need really is a partition shorthand typist — but they plot and scheme until they have "my secretary," who then sits in the office reading magazines and eventually leaves from boredom. They hire them for

Opinions vary as to whether dedication is a drug and you do better with a woman with a private life, or wheth someone who puts her life into it - "a strong streak of masochism is essential" - yields better results.

But at least the older woman does stay, you don't have to cope with her hangovers and heartbreaks, and her experience of things blue hotels and travel agencies, the personalities in the firms you deal with and where to get egg-nog stains off pants in half un hour flat can outweigh all but the most catastrophic appearance.

Half the trustile is that people are so used to thinking of cretaries as shadows that they rarely think out exactly what their work is. With paper as with people any two pieces of paper left in a drawer together breed; and if anyone doubts it, I can point to one firm that saved isself thousands and thousands a year by simply telling everybody to throw information me away instead of filing them, and send memos back with the answer scribbled on the bottom, instead of getting accommon to type out a formal answer.

Talks About Books

Every week I receive letters from readers wanting to know. where they can buy a certain book I have mentioned. Books are to be found in book stores. just on fish is found in fish shops and flowers in flower shops. A book store is a retail establishment with a sign wandow.

A few years ago, I read that there are more blacksmiths in America than book shops, and I believe it. Many small towns do not have a single book shop, and even a few cities of considerable size have books available only in the local department store.

And even good back shops today find it difficult to stay in business solely from the sale of books -- most of them make more out of greeting cards and such frippery than they do out of the books themselves. The only booming segment of the business is textbooks, because more people are being educated than ever before.

But the U.S. is far from a literate public. Although it has the largest student hody in the world, and its educational budget alone is bigger than the total national budgets of most countries, it is not a nation of readers.

Some time ago, a Gallup Poll taken in the U.S. and Great Britain disclosed that the English people read about five times as many books as Americans do — to which the acteristic American reply would probably be: "If they rich?" But if we're so busy becoming rich that we don't get smart, we're in for a

Extraordinary Says Trudeau

OTTAWA (Special)—Prime Minister Trudeau Friday called the Wall Street Journal's report of campaign donations by the SIU coming in the wake of rejection of Ontario's extradition bid for Hal Banks "rather extraordinary."

Trudeau said Rusk was authorized under law to intervene in the case and he refused extradition.

"They acted within their rights and we can't complain about that," he said. But there might be 'some political questions asked by Americans."

Hulbert, also known as Frank Pepler, of Port Alberni, was convicted in Victoria and sentenced by Judge M. L. Tyréhitt-Drabe after a jury found him guilty of committing perjury in 1943 when he was 15.

Hulbert was said to have lied when he testified that William Mitchell, charged with the murder of Molly Justice, had confessed the crime to him. Mitchell was acquitted. Victoria lawyer Jack Gatehouse, defence counsel, appealed the perjury charge on grounds of misdirection by judge in regard to the question of corroboration.
